A Question of Values: Six Ways We Make the Personal Choices that Shape Our Lives, Hunter Lewis, Axios Press, 1990, . The book seeks to answer the question, "What are my values?" It catalogs six types of alternative value systems formed on the basis of authority, logic, sense experience, emotion, intuition & science. There is a section on each value system, & readers can determine which systems most accurately describe themselves, their family, their friends & their colleagues. On one level the book explores how & why individuals choose the values they do. On another level it addresses a variety of social issues: whether values should or should not be taught in the classroom &, if so, how they can be taught without violating the freedom of choice which underlies pluralism in our society..
